

CSSS General Meeting Minutes

Devan Scott

Wednesday, November 5th, 2008

Chris calls meeting to order at 4:33 PM.

Attendees

Name	E-mail	Affiliation
Devan Scott	das10	Secretary
Marc Derosier	mdd7	Surrey E.A.L.
Chani Armitage	cea5	Burnaby E.A.L.
Holly Becker	hcd1	Surrey VPA
Cory Brassington	cjb1	Key Maker
Josh Weissbock	jrw4	Max Payne
Sepand Gojgini	sgojgini	Old School Major
Ellis Ly	ekl8	Pirate-At-Large
Ivan Jelinic	ija5	First Year Rep
Hardeep Shoker	hss8	The Hardeep
Chris Walters	cgw2	VPR Surrey
Dave Hughes	dlh3	Treasurer
Chris Parsons	cwp3	President
Melannie McCarnan	mtm2
David Kwan	djk4	Major
Max Whitney	mwhitney	VPA Burnaby
Tom Clark	tac3
Curtis Muller	cim1	VPO Elect (Please?)

1 Report of Officers

1.1 President (Chris)

- Microsoft Rep is in Europe right now, he ordered a banner that cost $71. Someone needs to pick it up
- Devan volunteers to pick up banner

1.2 Treasurer (Dave)

- The CSSS Fund is sitting at around $1400

1.3 Burnaby VPR (Cory)

- Pop is selling well
- We have a new set of keys

1.4 VPR Surrey (Chris W.)

- He's lazy.
- We have people in our Surrey lounge playing games, and they're buying our shit.
- No Zombies.
- Zombie threat-o-meter is at medium.
- Hannah points out it should be set to high due to MACM midterms
- Marc points out Calculus midterms create zombies.
- Apparently it's Stoners, not CS students, playing games

1.5 VPA Surrey (Holly)

- Hasn't failed any classes yet

1.6 Exec At Large Burnaby (Chani)

- Hasn't done much.

1.7 Secretary (Devan)

- Movie Night this week is only featuring one movie.

1.8 First-Year Rep #1 (Ivan)

- First-years are succumbing to post-midterm depression.

2 VPO Burnaby Elections

- Chris notes the VPO Position is generally thought of as a replacement for the president if the president is gone. They chair meetings and do things that need to be done. Like the exec-at-large but better. It's a year-long position.
- Ryan Longair is running by proxy.
- Josh nominates Ryan, Dave seconds, Ryan accepts somehow.
- Josh nominates Sepand, Dave seconds. Sepand accepts.
- Josh nominates Curtis, Yvonne seconds, Curtis accepts.
- Max enters the room, gives belated report.

2.1 Belated VPA Burnaby Report (Max)

- The event with the DS club on Halloween went well, it ended at around 9:30
- Smash Tournament went well, lots of people.
- We want to have a Quantum of Solace night next week
- Chris wants to discuss that on open floor.

2.2 Now, about those VPO elections...

- Josh Nominates himself. Dave Seconds. Josh Accepts!
- Hannah nominated by Dave, seconded by Josh. Hannah does not accept as she isn't here.

2.3 VPO Speeches

- Ryan (By the wonderful technology of electronic mail, read aloud by Devan): Hey exec, I'd like to run for VPO on a platform of conflict of interest. At the next meeting, could someone put forth a nomination for me and read my speech? I'm Ryan Longair, and I'm running for VPO. My stance on the sponsorship issue? Total conflict of interest! If elected, I will spend the two days I have in office between the election and my last day at Microsoft completely selling everyone out! In fact, I've already short-sold the CSSS to Microsoft. If all the subprime bastards can do that, why can't

I? If this sale doesn't go through, there will be another stock market crash! Do /you/ want to be responsible for a stock market crash? More seriously though, I get things done. I was VPR from January to August and got the information we needed out of Minolta to see we're totally screwed. I canned the slow-selling Sprite and replaced it with the better-selling Fanta Cream Soda (disclaimer: I don't have any numbers for Fall semester). I've got no problem chairing meetings, promoting the CSSS, managing volunteers, dealing with grad students, or executing military coups on Chris. I've handled the society chequebook and written continuity reports before as VPR. Sure, I'm in Seattle on Co-op until Nov. 10 but once I'm back I'll have plenty of time to do my duty.

- Sepand: Most of you might know him, he's in 6th year computer science and has been here just as long as Ryan has, but took the time to attend the meeting. He hates cream fanta. He's participated in Froshweek for two years in a row (2005, 2006), he runs EOSS and other events, is familiar with most of the processes of the society, is in the common room almost every day, and if anyone wants to talk about society topics he'll be there.
- Curtis: Good afternoon, you all know him (except Marc), he thinks he would be one of the best choices for this position. He's put on lots of events, helped out lots, and he's here every day from Monday to Friday. There's not really a lot to say, he thinks we should pick the best choice for office.
- Josh: He's a third-year, he lives on campus and is therefore here on Saturdays and Sundays in the morning, and doesn't think a Military Coup is happening. He's led Canadian forces fighting suicide bombers in Quebec. He thinks being a good leader in the military will make him a good CS leader, he can stand in front of crowds, he's pretty logistical and can keep shit in order, and he's wearing a poppy. Vote for him. Or so he says.

2.4 Q&A

- Dave: Do any of the Candidates know what the job of VPO entails? Answer at the same time.
- All the candidates answer at the same time.
- Do any of the nominees have any experience with chairing meetings?
- Sepand has chaired Froshweek meetings
- Cory wants to know the candidate's stance on the Fanta issue
- Josh likes Fanta orange, but other than that, no. He'll drive to America to buy us some sweet, sweet Fanta Orange if needed.
- Max: What's the availability of the candidates?

- Josh lives on campus, so he's here all day.
- Curtis will take lots of CMPT courses in the spring.
- Sepand leaves the campus late at night and comes early.
- Ivan: Do the candidates like themselves?
- Dave: "What makes you the best candidate?"
- Josh notes it's hard to narrow that down.
- Tom thinks it's a douchebag question.
- Curtis thinks it's a good question.
- Chris: Can we ask any question we want? In that case, what is (Insert math question here)?
- Ivan: How will you deal with First-Years?
- Josh will include them in the group unless they make references to raping and pillaging.
- Chris: He wants the VPO to be responsible for corporate sponsorship and be our rep to the companies. What are the candidate's feelings on this?
- Josh will do whatever the majority thinks is right.
- Sepand says he's dealt with various companies a lot but will do the same thing as Josh.
- Curtis: Our economic future is uncertain, so corporate sponsorship now would be the best way to secure good..... future.
- Chris: any final questions?
- Why does everyone want this position?
- Curtis: 'Cuz it's a good position. He wants to make sure the position is filled with someone who will do it right.
- Josh: Has never been involved much till this year, and wants to get involved in the best way he can.
- Sepand: He has been involved but never in an exec position, VPO gets you more involved and gets you to interact with the department, representing both students and the department.
- Chris tells all the candidates to get the hell out.

2.5 Voting

- Voting is by super-double-secret ballot.
- Votes are tabulated.
- Sepand Wins! Congratulations Sepand on becoming our new VPO.

3 End of Semester Social

- Max: Summer EOSS didn't work too well. He would like to start planning on this semester's EOSS next week. It'll probably be on the 28th of November.
- Max notes that the spring social didn't work really well either, so he's worried.
- Dave mentions last spring's EOSS had a timing issue. Lots of classes were earlier in the day, so people left before the social started.
- Max says that in the summer we didn't do much advertising for the EOSS.
- David notes that we need advertisement throughout the campus.
- Hardeep asks why we need to have it in the atrium?
- Chris notes that we should have it on-campus, since it's basically an all-day event.
- Ivan suggests we have a big rave in a warehouse.
- Chris doesn't think we have the budget for that.
- Max is planning to schedule an activities meeting next week, maybe next Wednesday at 4:30
- David suggests games and prizes, everyone loves those.
- Dave mentions that we should do a balloon drop again
- Max says he needs volunteers
- Max asks: Do we want a theme? We used to have them but stopped for some reason.
- Chris notes the university doesn't like pirates as a theme since they think it promotes piracy.
- Cory asks if the University prefer pirates or S&M?
- Kerry's pina coladas are usually popular, apparently.

- Max asks how much budget we have for this right now? We had a $200-300 budget for previous EOSS's.
- Dave says that $300 is definitely reasonable.
- Chris asks if we want to motion for money right now?
- Dave asks how much the cotton candy machine costs.
- Sepand says it's around 60 bucks.
- Various arguments crop up over how much we should charge for cotton candy.
- Dave says we can charge 75 cents or a dollar and we'd still sell a ton of them.
- Dave notes that we've decided "No theme" because it takes a LOT more work to stage a themed event.
- Max motions for $300 dollars for the EOSS. Josh Seconds.
- A vote is called
- Dave abstains

Motion passes

4 Open Floor

- Minutes haven't been circulated because Dave and Marc are dunces.
- It's $7 a ticket at Dolphin Cinemas and they're showing Quantum of Solace
- Chris notes that Dave suggested to buy every ticket, but that would mean way too many tickets.
- Tickets would be bought for 7 bucks and sold to CS members for 5 dollars.
- Ivan bets a shitload of first-years will want tickets.
- Chris notes the movie opens on the 14th, before our next meeting.
- Max asks how much money we need for tickets.
- Various Sources throughout the room mention Dolphin has maybe 250-300 seats.
- 200 tickets would be infeasible, budget-wise.
- Would be able to return tickets?

- Chris asks: How about we buy 50 tickets?
- Dave wants to see what Dolphin is like.
- Dave motions for $500 dollars for movie tickets for Quantum of Solace to be sold at a reduced price to CSSS members.
- A whole ton of people second.
- Ivan thinks it's way too much money.
- Dave says that it's an "Up to" amount, meaning we won't spend that much right now.
- Ivan notes that Dolphin doesn't do pre-orders. He's been inside Dolphin. There's one teller. You can't preorder shit.
- Dave thinks that doing a mass order would mean we can preorder tickets.
- Dave thinks we should get posters out tomorrow, with ticket ad and movie times.
- Chris: Any more discussion on this motion?
- Vote is called!
- Dave and Chris argue about how abstentions would be noted.
- In a striking reversal of fortune, Dave asks if anyone wants their abstention noted.
- Everyone has seen the minutes! A vote is called to pass the minutes.

Motion passes.

- Dave motions for up to 50 dollars to buy a copy of Robert's Rules and Orders for the CSSS to be kept in one of our cabinets to be used at meetings. David seconds.
- Cory thinks this is a bad idea, since it'll make our meetings even more drawn-out
- Josh motions to replace voting with rock-paper scissors.
- Max motions to amend Dave's motion to remove the requirement that we keep it where Dave says.
- Vote is called.

Motion passes

- Ivan wants his abstention noted.

- Dave motions to for up to 50 dollars for full copy of Rob's Rules and Orders to be kept in our possession at an undisclosed location for use at CSSS meetings.
- Vote is called.

Motion Passes.

- Lots of sex toy talk.
- Dave motions for 50 dollars for a new dildo. Everyone seconds, especially Josh.
- David thinks it should be engraved with "CSSS".
- Vote called.

Motion passes.

- Devan abstains
- Ivan plugs his gaming tournament
- Ivan plugs his tournament again.

Chris says "The meeting's over" at 5:40 PM